

Long distance communication on 160 meters is difficult at best with the abundance of atmospheric noise, but when coupled with man made noise, readability of transmitted signals are in many cases impossible. Having a "band plan" where wide band modes (phone and image) are separated from narrow band modes is necessary for intelligent communication. I am in favor of you implimenting RM-10352.